THE HERMIT OF FOUCHE.

A STORY BY SUSAN SHEPPARD STEVENS.

No one seemed to know whence he came, or how long he had been there, when a countryman, more curious than his kind, seeing the corner of a shanty through the bushes, stopped his ox cart and went down the slightly worn path to reconnoitre. The abode which rewarded this trouble would scarcely justify even the name of "shanty," and after a wondering survey of the then deserted dwelling he returned to his cart.

"Glang!" he ordered, emphasizing his command with a crack from his long whip, and he slouched along beside his oxen, with a gait and bearing so like their own weary slowness, meditating over the foolishness which had led any human being to select such a spot in which to dwell. Some weeks after, when he encountered Elijah, tall, dark and gaunt, with sombre dark eyes which seemed to burn with a consuming fire, he ceased to wonder, and decided that "the critter was plum crazy."

The spot selected by the stranger for the erection of his shanty might well have given rise to wonder, even in the minds of the stolid country folk who frequented the road. It was upon the bank of a stream, a fork of the Arkansas, known to the people thereabouts as Fouche, and in reality a cypress swamp, from whose muddy, currentless depths the corrugated cypress trunks raise themselves high in air to end in dark green feathery foliage, arching over and closing in like a green Gothic aisle in one of nature's cathedrals. From root to topmost branch, the water below faithfully reproduces the leafy arch, and so still and unruffled is the surface of the swamp that the reflected image is as unwavering and as clear cut as the original. Bush and water plant thrive beneath the trees, though little sun strikes through to help their growth, while dotted about here and there is that curious root formation, the cypress "knee," which presents the appearance of an abortive tree, attempted, perhaps, by one of nature's journeymen, who found his task impossible of completion.

About twenty feet from the bank of this stream had been placed the hovel which had given rise to so much wondering comment. It was built of half rotten, discarded boards, and consisted of but a single room, whose one window closed with a wooden shutter. The deficiencies in the roof were made good by a covering of tin, evidently constructed by the laborious melting and beating out of stray tin cans. On the outside of the house was a rude chimney, built of lath and plastered with mud. Within, on a floor of rough boards, stood a chair, table and bed, all unmistakably of home manufacture, and evidently the work of awkward and unskilled hands. In one corner of the room, fastened to the walls, were two wide shelves. Upon the upper one rested an oblong wooden box, of a size which might have served as a coffin for a new born infant. This box was secured by a tiny padlock, and had evidently remained untouched for months, as evidenced by the dust and cobwebs which had claimed it for their own. Beside the open hearth hung an iron pot and skillet. There was nothing in all the room to relieve its look of bare poverty save scrupulous cleanliness.

Had one taken the pains to observe Elijah's way of living, he might almost have been led to believe that, like the prophet of old whose name he bore, he, too, depended upon the birds of the air for subsistence. For the most part, such poor living as he got came from the muddy waters at his door. He had a bateau and an old dug out, which he had plugged up and made sufficiently sound for use, and in one of these he daily paddled himself out on the swamp, to sit for hours patiently fishing for the tasteless finny inhabitants of the water. When his catch was larger than he needed he sometimes sold a string of fish, and in this way supplied the few necessaries of his meagre existence. Once or twice he had worked for a few days at odd jobs for some of the neighboring farmers, but they were curious and asked many questions, and so he had ceased any attempt to make his living among his kind, and now spent his days and nights beside the swamp, which seemed but a sombre reflection of his own sombre personality.

"That pore crazy critter 'll be chillin it 'fore long, ef he aint already at it," remarked a woman, glancing toward the cabin in the bushes from her chair at the back of the wagon, as the oxen slowly slouched over the long bridge leading to town. "He'll git so full er pizen, he won't stop shakin' this side er judgment." If the chills rack d his bones and the feve burnt his body no one was any the wiser, for he endured in silence, growing perhaps a trifle more gaunt and yellow as the summer wore away.

The hours spent in his miserable hovel which were not given to sleep were, for the most part, passed in prayer. Kneeling upright on the floor, his body sometimes swaying in ecstacy, oftener rigid with his strong effort at self control, his voice would rise in supplicatory cadence until it reached a commanding frenzy, in which he besought, implored, demanded of the Almighty to help and save him from the temptations of the devil, and the weakness of his own heart; ending at last, when spent and weary with the force of his passionate outburst, with a sobbing iteration of "Lord, have mercy; Lord, have mercy; Lord, have mercy!"

A warm sunny day in October, the sun beating down hotly on the stretch of white road, no hint of approaching winter, save in the steady autumn breeze which came with a sharp, cutting sound through the half dead grasses, like a sigh straight from the heart of Nature, grieving, perhaps, over her fading loveliness. Down the sunny road walked a woman, a woman in experience of suffering, though scarcely more than a child in years. Her face would have been babyish, had it not been for her hollow cheeks and lack of color; her eyes were large and child-like, her mouth delicately moulded, her chin weak but pretty. She wore a slat sunbonnet pushed back as far as possible upon her head, in spite of the heat of the sun; her limp calico gown had caught, and still dragged after her a long blackberry brier, but she walked on utterly oblivious of her appendage. She sighed with weary satisfaction when a bend in the road brought her within the shade of the cypress tree, and when, after a few minutes, she reached the long plank bridge leading over Fouche, she for the first time showed an interest in her surroundings.

She paused in the middle of the bridge, and looked eagerly out over the dark waters, first up and then down; nor did her eyes relinquish their search until they encountered the shanty on the bank, partly concealed by the undergrowth. Hurrying forward, with a look half expectant, half fearful, she reached the end of the bridge and kept the road, until she discovered the now well-worn path leading to Elijah's hut. Into this she turned. With hesitating step, she went down this narrow way, and pausing at its end to push aside a glowing sumac—that burning bush, whose flame-like bunches winter would soon snuff out—she found herself close beside the house. Inside, a man's harsh voice rose and fell on the still air: "Oh, Lord God, just Creator, spare Thy faithful servant; in Thy wrath and displeasure, give me not over to the buffeting of Satan, lest I be utterly lost cast into the fiery pit. Take away from me the face of this woman who is ever before me, trying to drag me to perdition and the barter of my soul. Smite the evil one that torments me, Lord God. I have ever been a faithful servant to Thee from my youth up. I have preached Thy word and regarded Thy laws. Thou didst say, 'If thine eye offend thee, pluck it out,' and I did more—I tore out my heart, and yet the evil one comes to me in the shape of this woman and tries to draw me back, to make me forgive and cover her crime and sell my soul to be with her. Lord God, take this temptation away!"

The voice which had been climbing higher and higher, more frenzied and more impassioned with each appeal, finally broke into a pitiful sob, and the woman heard the hysterical murmur. "Lord, have mercy; Lord have, mercy." She stepped softly to the open door, facing which the man knelt upright and rigid in the middle of the room. As he saw the figure in the doorway his face took on a ghastly pallor, and once more his supplications sounded on the still air.

"There she is now, Lord; I see her plainer than ever. It is Satan himself taking the form of a woman to drag me into everlasting damnation. God have mercy upon me! I know Thou art a God of wrath and punishment, but what have I done to be so tormented?"

"Elijah, Elijah!" exclaimed the woman, and holding out her hands, she advanced a step within the little room.

"Begone, fiend; thou shalt not have me!" exclaimed the man, springing to his feet and retreating a step.

"Elijah, Elijah," exclaimed the woman, with a weak little quiver of the childish chin, "I ain't no fiend; don't you know me? It's Luella; it's your wife."

For some minutes he regarded her intently, trying to satisfy himself that this was a reality, and not a mere vivid impression of the face which had haunted his vision for so many weary months. Finally his tense form relaxed slowly, and he asked in an unnatural voice, "Whar did you come from?"

"I come from home, whar I ben stopping ever since you sent me thar; but I won't go back; 'Lijah, I can't stay thar no longer. The folks is allus peekin' and pryin' ter fin' out why you done lef' me. They 'low it must er ben somethin' mighty bad ter make yer go off like that; and mam and dad ain't much better. Lemme stay here with you, Lige. I won't never do nothin' ter spite yer agin. If I'd a sensed how you was goin' to take on 'bout that, I never in this worl' would er done it; but it didn't seem so bad ter me. I couldn't help lovin' pretty clo's an' gay colors, and it was just as natural for me ter want 'em as it was fer the pinks and pretty-by-nights ter blossom in the garden." She took a hesitating step nearer her husband, and continued in pleading tones, as she saw no relaxation of his stern features. "I knowed it wa'n't right ter git the dress unbeknownst ter you, but the sto' keeper 'lowed he trus' me, and I fixed it that I war goin' ter pick berries, and Jim war goin' ter peddle 'em in town for me, an' I war goin' ter pay fer it that way. After you sent me home and lef' the place, an' I see how you looked at it, I fetched the dress back to the sto' an' the man tuk it back agin. Won't you let me stay with you now, 'Lige? It don't look like ter me that was such a awfully wicked thing."

"Ef that was all yer had done, Luella," answered the man sternly, relapsing into the rude speech from which he only escaped in his moments of religious communing. "I could er forgiven yer; fer while I don't hold with vanity an' sinful bedizinen' of yerself in fine apparel—you that was a preacher's wife, an' was boun' ter be a pattern—I 'low I ought ter remember you was like that when I married yer. If a man catches a butterfly er flutterin, roun' the garden, he ain't got no right ter expect that by puttin' it in er cage it's goin' ter be anything but er butterfly. Even as it was, when I found out yer crime, don't you 'spose I was tempted ter overlook it an' make excuse fer you, until I saw that it was the devil's offerin' me you, that I loved, for my own immortal soul? Don't you know that I wrastled with the powers of Satan fer hours before I got the strength ter come away an' leave yer? Don't you know that thar ain't ben a day since I lef', but I've seed yer eyes er hauntin' me an' beseechin' me ter come back, till I have mos' give it up? But the Lord said, 'If thine eye offend thee, pluck it out,' an' he give me the strength to hold out."

"Why Elijah," she exclaimed, in puzzled surprise, "I ain't committed no crime. I don't know what you mean."

"Thar ain't no good in denyin' it," returned the man sternly. "That don't make matters no better fer anybody. You know, and I know, that you took the ten dollars that was collected at meetin' ter help Mother Hawkins pay her mortgage, thinkin' ter pay fer yer gew gaws with it. I knowed, Luella, yer was triflin' an' full er vanity, but I never 'lowed yer love fer the sinful pleasures er the world would er tuck you ter such lengths as that."

"Before the Almighty God, Elijah, I knowed no more than a babe unborn 'bout the money I never, s'help me God, even knowed yer had it. Do you 'low ter tell me thet was why yer went off an' lef' me?"

The man gazed at her with sorrowful displeasure. The fixed belief of months was not to be shaken by a simple denial. "Elijah, Elijah, don't yer believe me?" she exclaimed, a pitiful break in her voice, her childish face whitening with despair. "Oh, Lord God Almighty, what shall I say to make him believe me?" she questioned, smiting her hands together in helpless dismay.

"There ain't nothin' yer can say, Luella. You know yer done it, an' ef yer was ter talk tel jedgment you couldn't make me believe nothin' else. Circumstances is too strong agin yer. I fetched that money home after gittin' it turned into one bill, an' it war the very day Abraham Skinner fell offen the house, an' was so bad hurt. I had ter go right off ter him, an' not wantin' ter carry that money with me, I put it behind the box what we kep' the baby's things in, thet same box," he said, following her eyes which had quickly turned toward the corner. "When I come back from Abraham's I was thet forgitful I never thought ter take the money an' put it away tel next day, an' then I see it was gone. You 'lowed yourself, when I asked you that thar hadn't ben nary a soul 'bout the place whilst I was gone, an' that very day I foun' yer had bought a dress ter the sto', an' I knowed then that Satan had led yer captive, through yer vanity. I ain't a goin' ter tell yer how I wrastled them next two days, 'tain't no use," he said drearily, "but it didn't seem no good tellin' yer, fer I knowed you'd deny it, jest like yer have, addin' the sinfulness er lyin' ter the burden yer was already carryin'—so I come away without sayin' nothin' and you ought not ter have followed me; 'tain't no use."

With no look of appeal, only blank despair, which almost dignified the weak little face, the woman accepted her sentence. She had too often beaten out her puny will

TOWN AND TOWNSHIP.

The Events of the County as Chronicled by "Review" Correspondents—Summary of the Week's News.

METAL.

Rev. E. B. Somers of the U. B. church preached his last sermon for the closing conference year on Sunday evening. He referred feelingly to the kindness shown him by the members of his congregation at this place. He expressed his gratification over the fact that he had received more than the full amount apportioned for his salary at this appointment.

However, notwithstanding all the good work done by Rev. Somers and the ministers who so ably serve the other congregations at this place, not all the people in the community obey the injunctions of the preachers. Among the sins still flagrantly committed is that of Sabbath breaking, and that, too, by persons who attend church frequently and are among the most intelligent of our people. For the sake of our young people, especially, this should be stopped by law if other means will not suffice.

A rather perplexing school question has arisen recently in our community, which has been settled by the school board in a way that is not satisfactory to all parties concerned.

The case is this: Two pupils had been attending one of the schools in this end of the valley, and being desirous of studying certain branches that were not taught in the school they attended, they went to the teacher of a neighboring school in which these branches are taught and asked to be admitted to that school. The school not being crowded the teacher willingly admitted them, and they proceeded with the studying of the branches they desired and which were not taught in the school they had attended. The matter was reported to the school board and to the county superintendent, and these agreed that the pupils could not attend a school outside their own sub-district, so the pupils were prohibited from attending the school to which they had gone outside their subdistrict and are deprived of studying the branches they desired to take up.

There is no criticism of the qualifications of the teacher whose school the pupils desired to leave. The school is large and the teacher labors faithfully and probably has not time to take up the additional work that the pupils referred to desire to do, while the teacher to whom they desired to go has the time and is willing to give them assistance in the additional branches they wish to study.

Is there not a provision in the school law that all pupils shall have the opportunity of studying the branches provided by the curriculum of the public schools of Pennsylvania? We notice that the matter of grading rural or country schools is being agitated throughout the state and favored by Dr. Schaeffer, State Superintendent of Public Instruction. Since this is so, and the necessity for opportunities to study the higher branches, is recognized and there are as yet no graded schools in our locality to meet this case, and others like it, we would like to ask the teachers and school authorities, through the REVIEW whether it was right to deprive these pupils of the opportunity for studying the higher branches and thus fit themselves for entering a state normal school, academy or other school above the grade of an ordinary country public school in which the teacher has not the time to teach the higher branches. PATRON.

CONCORD.

John McMullen made a business trip to the county-seat Wednesday.

Frank Hockenberry, executor of his father's estate, will make sale of his household goods and a house and lot on Saturday, March 7, 1896. The Clearfield lumber company is sawing a bill of lumber for ship building. The lumber is 12x12 and 38½ feet long.

John Walker and Miss Nannie Seibert were married February 20, at the home of the bride's parents, by Rev. Paus.

Wm. Stitt will have sale on March 12 before moving to Cumberland county.

Charles Hockenberry, of Shade Valley, formerly of Doylesburg, had his leg broken last week by a log rolling on him. He is also suffering with rheumatism.

D. P. Devinney was granted a soldier's pension last week.

At the recent election in Fannett township, Mervin McKim and William Wolff were elected school directors; John Fegan, M. H. Funston and Geo. M. Shetler supervisors and Alex. Skinner constable.

Misses Katharine and Lizzie McElhenny, Sally Miller, Ella Love, Emma Skinner and Hulda Devor, teachers in this township, will enter the Junior class at Shippensburg Normal during the spring term.

Quite a number of our citizens are suffering with the grippe.—Mrs. Eliza Hays is lying dangerously ill with pneumonia.

KAUFFMAN.

J. W. Tritle, son of J. G. Tritle of near McConnellsburg, has begun work for the coming summer with Jacob Hartzock.

Miss Tillie Foust of Greencastle, is visiting Dr. G. B. Kauffman's family.

John Gsell and son of Kansas, are visiting friends near Kauffman.

C. C. Hager of near Brown's Mill, has been quite ill with pneumonia the past two weeks.

Samuel Armstrong of this place, who has been suffering with the grip the past two weeks, is able to be about again.

Two of David Cump's sons have been very ill with pneumonia.

QUINCY.

Sunday week a number of young ladies and gentlemen gathered at the home of John P. Burns, near the Methodist chapel, to which they had been invited by Miss Ada Burns. Miss Mollie Moats, Miss Maggie Bener, Miss Mary Robinson, W. G. Stoops, C. N. Miller and Edgar Burns were present. The day was spent in singing hymns, with Ada Burns at the organ. She is an excellent organist. When the hour for dinner had arrived, the party surrounded a table that groaned under the rich delicacies of life, among which was a large roasted turkey. This bountiful meal was prepared by Mrs. Burns who knows how to spread an excellent table.

Calvin H. Miller has organized a singing school at the Gap school house near the Methodist chapel, with 25 scholars. They meet every Wednesday evening. Mr. Miller is a young man and knows now to teach vocal music. We hope to hear that his class may still grow larger as time moves on.

Wednesday, Adam N. Ryder, Altenwald, slaughtered a hog that weighed, dressed, 516 pounds. At the same time he killed three others, weighing nearly 300 pounds each. The first mentioned was the largest slaughtered in that section of the country. James Heefner and Adam N. Ryder were head butchers.

Aaron B. Good, Millbrook, had a very good sale Thursday. He disposed of some fine cattle. One cow, with calf by her side, brought $59.50.

Our old veteran at Fox Hill, was in Chambersburg Saturday, it is said, and got his license to wed and before the blue birds nest again Johnny will have his bird in the cage. Of course, this is leap year. D. W. T.

GREENWOOD.

Since "J. M." left we see no communications from this place, yet we are by no means sleeping. Mount Union seems to have inspired or diffused a patriotic spirit, and several other flag poles have been erected. The Greenwood folks early in January raised a pole and purchased a flag. Appropriate ceremonies conducted by Miss Sarah Black, the teacher, were performed and consisted of recitations by pupils, a fitting address by the teacher, singing the "Star-Spangled Banner" and other appropriate songs and a brief speech by Hon. J. B. White, after which the flag was unfurled to the breeze. The next to fall in line was Mount Union, Guilford township, D. M. Shearer, teacher. Here the ceremonies consisted of several fine recitations, an excellent speech by Supt. Zumbro, followed by another by Hon. J. B. White, with remarks by several others. Let the good work go on until every school house in the land displays the flag of our country, not waiting for a compulsory law. There is patriotism enough if stirred up, to anticipate any law of that kind. Let it be aroused.

A GREAT HUMORIST DEAD.

"Bill" Nye Dies at His Home in North Carolina—A Kind Husband and Father.

Edgar W. Nye the great humorist, who is known wherever the English language is read, as "Bill Nye," died at his home near Asheville, North Carolina, on Saturday afternoon. His wife, two sons and two daughters were present at his bedside when the end came. Ten days ago he had a stroke of paralysis much more severe than the one at Patterson, N. J., when the cruel story that he was drunk was sent out.

Mr. Nye went to that section seven or eight years ago in search of health, and finally bought a farm, where he built a palatial home.

He was born in Shirley, Pascatqua county, Me., the 25th of August, 1850, was educated at an academy at River Falls, Wis., removed to Wyoming Territory, studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1876. He began early to contribute humorous sketches to the newspapers, using the name of "Bill Nye," was connected with various Western journals and afterward settled in New York City. He has published a number of works which have made him quite a reputation as a humorist.

He first wrote in Wyoming for a little paper called "The Sentinel." His description of the year he spent with this publication shows what he had to deal with.

"The Sentinel," said Nye, with a kind of half reproachful, half surprised look, "was a morning paper." We printed it before sundown, and then distributed it before breakfast. It thus had the appearance of extreme freshness and dampness.

After quitting the "Sentinel" Mr. Nye was Police Judge at Laramie city for six years, and in 1880 and 1881 he contributed his humorous writings to the Denver "Tribune." In the latter part of 1881 he became manager of the Caramie "Boomerang," and continued to act in that capacity until the fall of 1883. His humorous contributions first began to attract general attention about fifteen years ago. His sketches in the "Boomerang" were delicious, and were extensively copied by the newspapers of the country, but for a long time many of those who enjoyed the humor were doubtful of the existence of a paper with such a seemingly absurd name.

Mr. Nye's life, however, was in his domestic circle. His wife, a charming woman, was just the helpmate for such a man, and with his four children he was as much a child as any of them. He was a liberal entertainer of those who were so fortunate as to be his guests, but always refrained as much as possible from "grips and cranks" in the presence of his guests. He was much devoted to a corncob pipe and stretched himself on an easy old-fashioned lounge and puffed to his heart's content after his meals. "Work and play and comfort," he was wont to say, "come very close together with me." His room wherein he rolled off his humorous sketches he called a play house and most of his work was done in the morning hours. For three years, he told a recent guest, he did all his work standing up at a tall desk and that gave him a stoop which imparted a scholarly air of which he was proud.

GENERAL NEWS NOTES

Clipped and Condensed From Our Exchanges.

At his laboratory in Orange, N. J., Wizard Edison will try to obtain a photograph of a man's brain with the aid of the Roentgen rays. Interesting experiments in photographing the invisible are being made in Princeton, Columbia and New York City colleges.

Maud Darrell, a 17-year-old Chicago girl who is spending the winter with friends near Leesburg, Florida, was abducted on Thursday night and taken to the woods, where she was stripped and tied to a tree. When she was found the next day she was nearly dead from exposure.

Willie Johnson, a negro boy, was found hanging "by the neck, alive, but nearly frozen to death," in Madison county, Kentucky, Saturday morning. He said he was "taken from home Friday night by a number of white men and hanged."

Chairman Dudley, of the Democratic State Committee of Texas, has written a letter advocating the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, and bitterly assailing the gold standard Democrats of the state.

ARGUMENT COURT TUESDAY.

What Was Judicially Done In the Court House.

When court opened Tuesday morning a large number of petitions and motions were presented and many orders were granted and decrees made.

Col. W. D. Dixon, M. W. Kissecker and Geo. M. Stenger were appointed viewers for a road in Peters township between Bridgeport or Markes and Cove Gap or Foltz.

Joseph Middour, Aaron Fiester and Philip Hollar, were named to view a bridge site over Rush creek at the point where the road between Welsh Run and Upton crosses the creek.

S. V. Wingert, Frank Creamer and C. B. Hege were appointed to view a site for a public road in Antrim township from near the house of John W. Singer on the Brown's Mill road, to a point near the house of A. A. Shrader on the road leading from Clay Hill to Greencastle.

At the late election in Washington township, two candidates for supervisor received the same number of votes. Petitions in behalf of each candidate were presented to court. The matter was not decided.

A divorce was granted to Lizzie Patterson.

H. P. Fletcher, Esq., was appointed auditor to distribute the balance shown by the account of the Harrisburg and Bedford Railroad Company.

Mary E. Wolff's claim for maintenance against Edward Wolff, her husband, was filed.

Testamentary to W. R. Noble and W. J. Park, on will of Susan Patterson, late of Metal township, dec'd.

Administration to Theodore Wisner on estate of Harvey J. Sprenkle, late of Washington township, dec'd.

Testamentary to J. W. Diffenderfer and Calvin E. Sellers, on will of Saml. Diffenderfer, late of St. Thomas township, dec'd.

Administration to John A. Morter on estate of Elizabeth Morter, late of Montgomery township, dec'd.

Administration to Mrs. Nancy Kirkpatrick on estate of Daniel Johnston, late of Fannett township, dec'd.

We have not room for proceedings that were had later. They will be given next week.

Missionary Society Anniversary.

On Sunday night, February 23, the Missionary Society of St. Peter's Reformed church of Fort Loudon, celebrated its eleventh anniversary. The weather being favorable, permitted a very large concourse of people to be present. Some time before the appointed hour the church was filled to its utmost capacity. Every available space was occupied; and the intense interest and delight of the large audience was attested by the close attention that was given throughout the program, as the well-trained participants rendered their different parts. So well were all drilled and trained by Sunday School Superintendent J. H. Metz, that the beautiful and edifying program was rendered without a single break. The ladies very tastefully decorated the chancel for the occasion, with flowers and potted plants. The exercise entitled "Crown Him with many crowns," was the principal and most impressive feature of the evening. In order to carry this out successfully, a large crimson cross about six feet high was made to stand upon four steps near the chancel railing. At the close of the exercise, the primary infant classes marched up the centre aisle of the church singing and placing their crowns at the foot of the cross, and then with the other participants in the exercise, joined in singing, "Hosanna, to Our King."

In his address, the pastor made a brief review of the history of the society, which began with Miss Miriam Hassler and her Sunday school class composed of the following scholars: Misses Minnie Smith, Mary Metz, Jennie Nelling, Annie Ault, Blanche Ault, Grace Winters and Sue Bivens.

During the exercises of the evening Miss Annie Patton presided at the organ. The program was as follows: Anthem by the Choir; Invocation and Creed; Scripture Lesson; Gloria Patri; Prayer by the Pastor; Singing, "Speed Away;" an exercise, "In the Morning," by five girls; an exercise, "Crown Him with many crowns," by the school; Address by Pastor; Offertory; Reading of Minutes; Election of officers; Singing, "The Light of the World is Jesus"; Lord's Prayer; Doxology and Benediction.

The "Eagles" Will Have a Good Time.

St. Thomas Castle, K. G. E., of St. Thomas, will give a dramatic entertainment in the Hall in that place on Saturday evening next. The play is called "The Mountain Waif," and is a drama in four acts. Every part is interesting and the actor in each part will perform his or her character in a manner that will be sure to win the approbation of every one present.

There is no doubt that the entertainment will be one of the best ever given in St. Thomas, nor is there a doubt that it will be liberally patronized. The prices of admission are quite low. There will be excellent music selected for the occasion, and furnished by Zentmeyer's orchestra.

A Spirit of Enterprise.

The Repository gave proof of its progressiveness by issuing an Industrial Edition on Friday. It is of six pages, profusely and handsomely illustrated and very neatly printed on calendered paper. The pictures of many prominent citizens adorn its pages, as do many of the most striking and prominent points of interest. We congratulate the Repository on its up-to-dateness. There should be ready sale for every copy of the large edition that was issued.

The Franklin Review.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1896.

A WORD IN PASSING.

Town and County Briefs With a Bit of Comment—Happenings of the Week and a Forecast of Coming Events.

A social will be held in the Young Men's Christian Association rooms tomorrow evening. All friends of the organization are invited to be present.

In a total of 522 votes cast on the license question in Shippensburg Tuesday of last week there was a majority of 228 votes against license. Shippensburg prefers to go dry.

Geo. E. Reisner, West Market street, received by express several days ago from his cousin, Samuel Unger, of Parkdale, Arkansas, a beautiful deer hide robe for his baby's carriage. The robe is large and has a fine heavy coat of brown fur.

The Salvation Army will hold services in the armory hall on King street Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock and in the evening at 8 o'clock. Both audiences will be addressed by General John Peddon. A five cent admission or offering will be taken at the door.

The St. Thomas Lodge I. O. O. F., are preparing to erect a fine lodge building on what is known as the Band lot opposite Martin's store. It is expected the building will be completed by October. The first story will be used as a dwelling and the second floor for lodge purposes.

The business prospects of the Chambersburg Hosiery company have improved recently to such an extent as to warrant the stockholders in putting in a number of additional automatic knitting machines, and increasing the capital stock to $20,000 —double what it is now.

Items from the Women's Christian Temperance Union were received too late for this week's issue. They will appear on the fourth page next week. These items should be handed in not later than Friday morning of the week preceding the issue in which they are intended to appear.

Peter Leiter, while tearing out old vats in the long-disused and dilapidated tannery, formerly owned by James Cushwa, now owned by L. M. Beard and located near Clearspring, Md., unearthed an old vat containing forty-eight excellently preserved hides, which had been there for twenty-three years and are valued at $100. They are well tanned and have all the weight that bark liquor could give them.

Henry C. Bowen, who was for many years at the head of the New York Independent and one of the warmest friends of Henry Ward Beecher, died in New York on Monday, aged 85 years. Mr. Bowen was, for many years and until recently, when the infirmities of age pressed heavily upon him, one of the most forcible writers in the world. He made the Independent one of the greatest papers of its kind.

Thirty-two persons left Chambersburg and points between Chambersburg and Hagerstown on Tuesday over the Baltimore and Ohio railroad for points west of Chicago. The tickets were purchased of H. W. Spessard, the B. & O. agent here. Fifty persons left Hagerstown for the same destinations over the same road. Mr. Spessard has inquiries from many others as to rates, who will go west within the next few weeks.

The sawmill of P. M. Shoemaker nearly a mile south of Upper Strasburg, was burned yesterday morning. The saws were saved but the mill was destroyed and the engine much damaged. It is thought the fire was carried from the engine to the waste material near, and from this to the mill. The mill will have to be rebuilt and the engine repaired before work can be resumed if it is resumed at all. The loss will amount to several hundred dollars.

There was no demonstration in Chambersburg on Saturday in celebration of Washington's Birthday, but a number of large flags were flying. The one that floated from the tall staff on the court house attracted much attention. Many eyes were turned upward toward it in admiring glances. It is indeed a beautiful flag and as it waved in the steady breeze with every stripe and star visible it was an inspiring sight. The banks and a few other business establishments were closed, but otherwise the business of the town went on as usual.

The "Colonels" otherwise known as the "Explorers," a social organization of gentlemen, a number of whom are Chambersburgers, met in Harrisburg on Thursday to decide upon the next place of annual meeting, appoint the committees to arrange for camping and to enjoy a banquet. All the arrangements were perfected. The next meeting will be at Graffenburg as last year. Having attended to all their formal or business duties the gentlemen gave themselves up to enjoying the gastronomically good things, then the humorous and intellectual good things. Since their return from Harrisburg the Chambersburg contingent cannot refer to the day's pleasure without smiles and twinkling eyes.

The Mercersburg Journal thus discusses the roads in the vicinity of that place: "Some of the country roads in several of the adjoining townships are in a most wretched condition and utterly unfit for riding, driving or even walking. They more nearly resemble a sieve than anything else—filled as they are with holes, gullies and pitfalls for the unwary. Traffic on these roads almost entirely ceases during the bad weather of winter and early spring, although an occasional heroic teamster manages to successfully struggle through the mire. We hope the township supervisors will promptly endeavor to remedy this crying evil as it can be classed as nothing short of an evil." The Journal's suggestion will apply to many other sections of the county.

We learn from the Shippensburg News of Friday, that on Thursday afternoon Dr. R. L. Sibbett drove to the home of Cal. Sterrett, of Carlisle on the York road about eight miles from Carlisle, to pay a professional call. On the way home he was stricken with paralysis. About 5 o'clock his team was noticed near Mr. Meixel's who lives on the Wherry farm about a mile and a-half from town. The horse had stopped and Dr. Sibbett had fallen out at the right side of the dash board, as his body was wedged between the front wheel and the shaft. He had evidently been in that position a half-hour. He was taken into Mr. Meixel's house and Dr. Stewart summoned by whom he was brought home and taken to his rooms. Through the kindness of Gen. Boyd, of the Cumberland Valley railroad, a special car was attached to the noon train and in it Dr. Sibbett was taken to Shippensburg, where he will be cared for at the home of his sister.

Items of Interest About You and Our Friends and Those Whom We All Know.

Among the business visitors in Chambersburg Tuesday, were Mrs. James Kirkpatrick, of near Willow Hill and John A. Elder, Esq., of Dry Run.

Sheriff Greenawalt on Monday took two prisoners to the Eastern Penitentiary. The county commissioners also went to Philadelphia on business the same day.

Thomas Rossman, Langdon, D. C., spent several days visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Rossman, East Washington street, last week. Mr. Rossman is ticket agent for the B. & O. R. R. at Langdon.

H. J. Yeakle and John H. Yeakle, both of Sylvan, were business visitors to Chambersburg Wednesday. While in town they paid the REVIEW a substantial and agreeable call.

F. H. Miller, of St. Thomas, took time while in town on Saturday to call and subscribe for the REVIEW and pay a year's subscription. Of course he was a welcome visitor as are all who drop in on like errands.

Edward O'Neil, Philadelphia, spent Saturday and Sunday with friends in Chambersburg. Mr. O'Neil is clerk in the offices of the Reading railroad company at Philadelphia. He was the guest of his aunt, Mrs. Susan McKenna, West Market street.

Dr. H. M. Fritz, of Quincy, while a business visitor to Chambersburg last week made a friendly call at the REVIEW office. Dr. Fritz is one of the many friends of the REVIEW who have shown their friendship in a substantial manner. The editor regrets that he was not in when the doctor called.

A pleasant caller was T. J. Comerer, of McConnellsburg, Tuesday morning. Mr. Comerer is an active dealer in agricultural and other machinery. He settled the subscription of his father, Andrew Comerer, of Burnt Cabins, who, though well up in years, is a genial, kindly gentleman who has no enemies but many friends.

Ira Forney, son of John M. Forney, of Letterkenny, who has been working for W. S. Ashway for a year, left on Tuesday morning for Albany, Illinois, where he will remain during the summer. George and Edward Schaffnit, of Letterkenny, left at the same time for the same place. All are excellent young men who carry with them the best wishes of many friends.

J. C. Seacrest of the Nebraska State Journal published at Lincoln, Nebraska, is east on a visit among friends. Mr. Seacrest was formerly of Greencastle and is a nephew of Col. B. F. Winger of that place and of Mrs. W. Rush Gillan of Chambersburg. Mr. Seacrest is said to be a hustling newspaper man and is having unusual success in his calling in the west.

HER HANDS TORN OFF.

Dynamite Maims a Wife and Mother For Life.

On Thursday afternoon of last week a terrible explosion of dynamite occurred at the home of Samuel Welty, near Smithsburg, Md., on the Ringgold road. Mr. Welty was using dynamite for blasting in a well. Several sticks of the explosive had been placed on the cook stove to thaw. In a short time the dynamite ignited and began to burn. Mrs. Welty who was engaged with her household duties, noticing the impending danger, ran to the spot, and hastily gathered two sticks in her hands to throw them out, but before she could reach the door they exploded, mangling her in a most horrible manner.

Both hands were blown off at the wrists, one eye torn out, a deep gash torn in her side, and other injuries inflicted. The stove and a sewing machine were demolished, doors and windows blown out, and one corner of the house shattered.

Her physician stated that her body was covered with about 500 holes which looked as though nails had pierced her flesh. A deep gash was inflicted across her abdomen, exposing her bowels. Blood and small particles of flesh bespattered the room. The glass of four windows was knocked out and two doors off the hinges. Mrs. Welty's eldest child, aged four years, who was in the room with her, was injured internally. Mrs. Welty has three children. A maid in the kitchen heard the explosion and rushing to the room found Mrs. Welty and child both lying unconscious on the floor. Mrs. Welty regained consciousness.

The maid notified the men in the well of what had happened and they at once came to the house, where they found Mrs. Welty sitting upon the floor with her three little children around her crying pitifully. Mrs. Welty still had presence of mind to tell the men that there were two more sticks of dynamite on the stove which they should throw out. This they immediately did.

Another child two years old was in the room at the time and received not even the slightest scratch.

Mrs. Welty is a daughter of Cyrus Schriver, Waynesboro, and a niece of Henry Schriver of the Register of Wills office, Hagerstown, Md.

Ex-Congressman Harter Commits Suicide.

Ex-Congressman Michael D. Harter was found dead in bed in his room in a hotel in Fostoria, Ohio, on Saturday, he having committed suicide by shooting himself through the head with a revolver. He had been suffering from insomnia for some time. Mr. Harter was a low tariff Democrat and even after the Republicans had gained control of the Ohio legislature and put him in a district with a Republican majority of over 2,000, he went into the fight, fearlessly announcing his views on the tariff, and to the surprise of everybody he was elected by something like 2,000 majority. He was an indefatigable worker and very popular in the house. There was no other apparent reason for his committing suicide than the fact that his mind had become disturbed by insomnia. His death is deeply regretted.

It is learned that Mr. Harter carried $200,000 life insurance, of which $50,000 was in the Equitable, $30,000 in the Northwestern, $25,000 in the Pennsylvania, $25,000 in the Mutual Benefit of New Jersey and the balance in the Mutual Life of New York and other companies.

Are You Going West?

Persons contemplating a trip West, should bear in mind that the B. & O. Railroad operates a complete service of Fast Express Trains to St. Louis and Chicago, and sells through tickets to all points in the West, Northwest and Southwest.

HIS HEAD CUT OFF.

A Brakeman Falls Between the Cars and Is Horribly Mangled.

William Byrem, a young Western Maryland railroad freight brakeman, aged 24 years, was killed at a point two miles west of Hagerstown about 4:10 o'clock Saturday morning, and the body horribly mangled. He was one of the brakemen on extras 46 and 47, double headed, from Cherry Run, due in Hagerstown shortly after 4 o'clock.

The accident occurred at Eckstine's crossing. No one witnessed the unfortunate affair, but it is thought that the young man attempted to step from one car to another, when his foot slipped and he fell between the cars under the moving train. Nearly the entire train on which he was riding, and a local freight, which was closely following, passed over him.

His absence was not discovered until the train reached Hagerstown. His lantern was found on top of a car. His fellow workmen looked for him, but he was not to be found.

The night yardmaster, and George Fisher, call boy, started out to look for him. They had gone only a short distance when they met the local freight and an examination showed blood stains on the under rigging of the cars.

They returned, and, taking the yard engine and box car, they started out in search of the body. The horribly-mangled remains were found at the point stated. The head was entirely severed from the body and one arm torn off. The bones were broken into small pieces and the flesh torn off. The fragments of the body were brought to Hagerstown and taken in charge by Undertaker C. M. Suter.

A portion of the head, including the lower jaw, was found in the brake rigging of one of the cars of the local freight train. Undertaker Suter said it would be impossible to put the body together and that all he could do would be to wrap the parts in a cloth.

Young Byrem's home was in Harrisburg, where his father is now lying critically ill. He returned only a few days ago from visiting his father. He was a man of good moral habits. He had been an employee of the railroad for about seven months. Mrs. McCoy, Williamsport, was a cousin of the young man. He had also another cousin employed in the Frick shops at Waynesboro.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

Those Who Have Passed to the Great Beyond—The Death Record In Franklin County and Elsewhere.

John Butler, an aged and respected citizen of Stonehenge, died at his home in that place on Saturday morning, aged about 75 years. He had been in apparently good health until within a few hours of his death. He was postmaster at Stonehenge but the business of the office was attended to principally by his two daughters who survive him. He was a member of Zion's Reformed church of this place.

Rev. Charles Fisher, editor of the Reformed Church Messenger, died at his home in Philadelphia on Tuesday, aged about 60 years. He was born in Chambersburg, was educated at Franklin and Marshall college when that institution was still in Mercersburg. His first charge was at Grindstone Hill, this county. His death was made known to his aunt, Miss Fredrica Gruber, in Hagerstown, Tuesday evening, and in three hours from that time she also was dead. She had been suffering from the grip. Her death removes the last member of the Gruber family from that community. Her father, John Gruber, was the first publisher of the Hagerstown Almanack.

Jacob N. Flinder died at his home on East Queen street about midnight Monday, from a complication of diseases which resulted in dropsy. He had been confined to his home for several months, and for some time there had been scarcely any hope of his recovery.

Mr. Flinder had been a resident of Chambersburg for many years and was one of the most highly respected citizens of the town. He had been in the mercantile business for years, and for a long time held a responsible position in the postoffice. In 1884 he was elected county treasurer on the Republican ticket and performed the duties of his office faithfully. Since then he was not engaged actively in any kind of business.

Mr. Flinder was for many years and up to his death on active member of the Methodist church, holding the position of class leader for years, and being for a long time a member of the official board in his church. He is survived by four children, Misses Kate and Annie and Messrs. Albert and William.

The funeral takes place today—Thursday—at 2 P. M; interment in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Sousa Will Be Here Next Month.

The great and only Sousa with the greatest band in the world will be here next month. His concert in Chambersburg on Tuesday evening, March 24th, will be the grandest event of this year. It will be likely the last opportunity our people will have to hear Sousa as the band goes to Europe soon for a tour of a year or more. Excursions will be run to Chambersburg from all nearby points and tickets placed on sale in all towns one week before the concert.

L. Bert Eyster, the manager of the Sousa concert, has arranged for a special train on the South Penn road the night of the concert. Reserved seat tickets will be on sale in Mercersburg by R. B. Ritchey; in McConnellsburg by J. K. Johnston, and also by agents at Dry Run and Fannettsburg. Orders for a score of tickets have already been received from McConnellsburg and a party of eight have signified their intention to drive clear over from Shade Gap, Huntingdon county.

He Is Popular In His Ward.

The election of Dr. P. Brough Montgomery as a member of council from the Second Ward of Chambersburg, must be regarded as a tribute to his personal worth as a gentleman as well as his fitness for the position to which he has been elected. Dr. Montgomery is known by everybody as a Democrat of the uncompromising type, yet he was elected in a ward which is Republican two to one, over a citizen of the ward who is one of the largest property owners and is known as one of the safest and most cautious business men of the town. As his election depended largely upon Republican votes, Dr. Montgomery may well feel grateful for the large number of Republican friends he has around him. While there were other surprises in the town elections there was none so great as that of Dr. Montgomery and the majority he received.

A NOTABLE CAMP-FIRE.

Some Excellent Speeches, Music, Songs, etc., and a Good Supper.

Housum Post G. A. R., celebrated Washington's Birthday Friday evening with a camp-fire followed by a supper in the dining room of the Post Hall. The Post drum corps called the meeting to order by sounding the Assembly which awakened in the breasts of every old soldier present recollections of the time when that call meant so much for them. The orchestra then gave several musical selections which put everybody in the mood for listening. B. F. Johns, chairman of the camp-fire committee, then called upon Ex-District Attorney Charles Walter, who in the absence of Burgess Orr, made the opening speech of the evening. His address was complimentary to the Grand Army and an appeal to the patriotism of our people and a brief eulogy upon George Washington, in whose honor the day is celebrated.

After more music by the orchestra Judge Stewart, who is an active working member of the Post, was introduced, and he paid such a tribute to Washington, his virtues and fitness for the occasion to which he was providentially called, as is rarely heard or read. A conception of the character of Washington and his work in securing our liberties, was presented such as is not often presented to any audience or any readers of the biography of the "Father of His Country" Judge Stewart's address made it impossible to introduce into the exercises any of the lightness or fun that usually go to make up an ordinary camp-fire.

Dr. Martin followed in an address on educational and moral lines, indicated by the occasion and suggested lessons of patriotism and good morals that we may learn from the character, courage and labors of Washington in behalf of his country. The address of Dr. Martin was the ideal one from the teacher's and minister's point of view.

General Charles L. Young, of the Scotland Industrial school was the next speaker. His address was a plea for the cottage system in the school of which he has charge. He said it is impossible to secure the best results when a large number are gathered or domiciled in one large building and that the home influence which is most needed cannot thus be secured nearly so well as when the pupils are separated into smaller numbers as in families. He appealed to the veterans present to use their influence and power in securing the cottage system, which must be had if the school is to meet the ends it was organized to secure or accomplish. With the cottage system in use, he said, there would be no fear of breaking into sideboards, or other like misdemeanors.

Little Miss Minnich, the daughter of a veteran recited very prettily "The Little Brown Button," and still smaller Miss Foster, a granddaughter of another veteran, sang most sweetly a song whose title we fail to recall.

Chairman Johns then gave an address on "Old Glory" and sang a song, after which the audience was dismissed and adjourned to the dining room where bean soup, ice cream, cake, coffee and other refreshments were served.

FOR THE ENCAMPMENT.

A Revised and Correct List of All the Committees.

After Post meeting Tuesday evening there was a meeting of the committee of arrangements for the G. A. R. encampment to be held in June. While the meeting was a busy and animated one the proceedings were not such, possibly as would be of interest to the general public. It is sufficient to say that the work of preparation is going forward systematically and promptly, and there is every assurance that nothing will be left undone to furnish proper entertainment for the visitors on that occasion nor will there be any lack of arrangements for the proper conduct of the business of the encampment.

The complete list of the committees as furnished by the secretary of the committee of arrangements is given below. It has been announced that all the committees combined constitute the committee of arrangements of which F. W. Day is chairman, A. C. McGrath, secretary, and W. H. H. Mackey, treasurer. The other committees are as follows, the first named in each being chairman:

A Fire in Letterkenny.

Saturday evening about 8 o'clock the ice house and woodhouse of Jacob Stake of near Strasburg, took fire from an ashbox in the woodhouse. Both buildings were destroyed, much of the ice was melted and the wood in the woodhouse, of which there were a number of cords, was all burned up. The fire made quite a light for a long distance, and it was not long till many neighbors saw it and were present and worked with a will and thus saved the house and barn. The well was pumped dry to get water to put out the fire.

A Poor Man's House Burned.

The dwelling house belonging to Benjamin Yeager and occupied by the family of Truman Werdebaugh, in St. Thomas township along the mountain west of St. Thomas, was burned on Wednesday afternoon of last week. All the contents of the building except a few articles of furniture and the bacon were destroyed. The fire caught from a stove pipe running through the roof. The roof was falling in before it was discovered. Mr. Werdebaugh is a poor man and the loss falls heavily upon him. He has a wife and five children. Mr. Werdebaugh is a veteran of the late war and a member of Col. Elder Post, G. A. R. The veterans are doing what they can to help their needy comrade. In her efforts to save the baby Mrs. Werdebaugh was burned about the arms and face, her eyebrows were burned off.

A Native Product.

Some days ago a six horse team brought a large load of old-fashioned hickory hoop poles into town. The load came in West Market street and evidently the poles were cut on Kittatinny or North Mountain. The poles were fine, large, clean ones, such as used to be a large product of Fulton county, but it is doubtful if "Little Fulton" could now gather such a large load of first-class poles in one small section of the county. Fulton still carries the belt for buckwheat but Franklin probably has the premium on hoop poles.

H. B. GANOE.

This winter's Heating Stoves are especially good. The Art Perpect, Brilliant Sunshine and Perfect Gem Heaters heat the bedrooms above equally as well as the lower rooms.

A Wood Stove named the "Wonder" is a surprise. Not a door on the stove. Fire built from the top and yet no smoke. A chunk lasts all day and heats a room. It is certainly a marvel. Price $8.50.

The new Gold Coin Stoves have had a wonderful sale. Beautiful stoves and excellent workers—no wonder people are delighted.

Many other Wood Stoves that are made to heat. Dozens of Coal Stoves—handsome and plain. Large lot of second-hand stoves of all kinds, cheap.

Lard Cans—plenty of cheap ones—and our make, the very best. They will neither leak nor melt off the bottoms. We will pay for any loss. Come, try them. Prices are right.

CHURCH AND SUNDAY SCHOOL.

The Lesson For Sunday, March 1.

The international Sunday school lesson for next Sunday, March 1, 1896, is from Luke 9: 18-27. Title: Jesus the Messiah. Golden text: "This is my beloved son: hear him." In the busy life of our Lord many important events occurred and this is specially so between this lesson and the last.

After the raising of Jairus's daughter, our Lord left Capernaum, healed two blind men and a dumb demoniac and visited Nazareth again. After another circuit, the Twelve were sent forth, the murder of John the Baptist occurred while they were preaching, and Herod, hearing of Jesus, supposed that John had risen. On the return of the Twelve, our Lord withdrew with them to the east side of the lake, near Bethsaida Julias, and there fed the five thousand. During the return to the west shore, our Lord walks upon the water and immediately after delivers the discourse at Capernaum, which led to the defection of most of his disciples. This was the turning-point in the Galilean ministry. The subsequent journeys were mainly the result of the opposition which appeared. The contest about eating with unwashed hands was followed by a journey to the borders of Tyre and Sidon, where the daughter of a Syrophenician woman was healed. Returning by a circuit to the east side of the lake, some miracles of healing were performed, and the four thousand fed. When Jesus had crossed the lake to Capernaum, a sign from heaven was demanded, and he again withdrew to the east side, where he warned the Twelve against the leaven of the Pharisees. Near Bethsaida Julias a blind man was healed after which come the events in the lesson, recorded by all three evangelists. The silence of Luke respecting so many important events is remarkable. It is opposed to the view that he made use of the Gospels of Matthew and Mark in preparing his own.

The place of the lesson was near Cesarea Philippi, an important city, now called Banias. It is near the headwaters of the Upper Jordan, at the base of Mr. Hermon, about twenty miles north of the Sea of Galilee.

The time was the late summer of A. D. 29, in the thirty-third year of our Lord's life on earth. Andrews dates it in the autumn, since the Feast of Dedication that year was October 11-18.

The following "summary" and "Added Points" are taken from the Sunday School Times: After all that Jesus has now done and said, it is time for his followers to have clear views of his personal character and his coming work. To formulate these, he asks them, first, concerning the opinions others held, and secondly, concerning their own opinions, of himself. Satisfied with their confession as voiced by Peter, he discloses his own destiny of suffering, rejection, death, and resurrection. Such an outlook was more than discouraging to his disciples. It was positively appalling. But he meets any shrinking on their part by a distinct statement of the terms of discipleship. These are rigorous. They may involve loss of natural life, but they assure gain of life eternal, which alone is really profitable. And these terms, neglected, entail everlasting shame; observed, everlasting honor, the firstfruits of which are just at hand. A Master so exalted is worthy of corresponding service, and service so exalted meets corresponding reward.

Jesus praying alone is a spectacle in which all heaven was interested. Who may do without that which Jesus so prized?

Formulate opinions by pointed questions. A well-shaped question guarantees distinct reply.

The Son of man foresaw his destiny, and met it nobly. So should his followers meet their providential allotments.

To cheerfully accept Christ's conditions of service is to certainly win his assured rewards.

Jesus and his words stand or fall together. Ashamed of either means ashamed of both.

Ashamed of Jesus now; ashamed of us hereafter. Ashamed of Jesus before men; ashamed of us before his Father and the holy angels.

OURSELVES AND NEIGHBORS.

HAPPENINGS IN FRANKLIN AND ADJOINING COUNTIES.

Gleaned From Our Exchanges—The News of the Cumberland Valley and Southern Pennsylvania, With a Few From Beyond Mason & Dixon's.

At the battle of Gettysburg the average age of the soldiers of the Federal Army, including the officers, was twenty-two years.

A Lewistown man who picked up a gold ring on the street the other day took it home and found, by singular coincidence, that it belonged to his wife.

Grant Atterbury who was charged with a criminal assault upon his sister-in-law, was taken from the jail at Sullivan, Illinois, by a masked mob, one night recently, and hanged to a tree. The sheriff made no resistance.

The Chesapeake oyster beds are rapidly diminishing in productiveness says an exchange. Fifteen years ago they furnished about 10,000,000 bushels of oysters. The product this year will not be more than 5,000,000 bushels.

A general strike of the clothing cutters and trimmers in Chicago has been ordered, to resist an effort of the employers to change the system of work and reduce wages. It is estimated that over 25,000 people will be affected by the strike.

James Fitzgerald was hanged in the jail at St. Louis Thursday for murder. The rope broke when the trap was sprung, and there was a long wait until a new one could be procured, during which interval Fitzgerald was alive and suffering. He pleaded with his executioners to make haste.

In Waldeck, Germany, there is a law that no license to marry will be granted to any individual who has the habit of over-drinking, and once identified with the habit, an inebriate must produce sufficient proof of reformation to warrant his receiving the license at any future time. A very sensible law, that.

The Delaware county Children's Home, near Delaware, Ohio, was burned to the ground on Wednesday night of last week. The 24 inmates were all taken out with difficulty, clad only in their night clothing. The temperature was below zero and the children suffered terribly before covering could be procured. The school building at the Clinton county Children's Home, at Wilmington, Ohio, was burned Thursday. All the children escaped, but some of them suffered greatly from exposure to zero weather.

Miss Ellen Lehman, the accomplished daughter of Isaiah Lehman, Esq., of Union township, Fulton county, died on the 14th inst., at Lima, Ohio, of peritonitis, after an illness of several weeks. Miss Lehman was one of the most successful teachers in the country and had been engaged in her profession in Ohio for a number of years. She was a most estimable lady of broad culture, and her intellectual attainments and professional ability were fully recognized wherever she was known. Years ago she was a pupil of the writer and one of the brightest and best he ever had. The parents, sisters and brothers of the deceased lady have much sympathy in their loss.

Two holidays of National importance within ten days of each other call attention to the fact that little February is rich in birthdays of great men. Gen. Sherman was February's child; so, too, was Gen. Hancock. Longfellow and Lowell both claimed it as their birth month, the latter having been born on Washington's Birthday. Dickens, too, was born in February. One of several dates given as the birthday of Napoleon is Feb. 5, though this was denied by him, as it fell prior to the time when Corsicans could claim the right to French citizenship. The complete list would be a long one, but these names stand out prominently and are a good showing for the shortest and dreariest month of the year.

Large Enough.

A foot traveler through one of the hilly regions of Ireland came one day upon a curious little cabin, so small as to seem hardly large enough for a human habitation. While she was whimsically considering as to whether it might not be the abode of the famous "good people," about whom so many loving superstitions cling, the figure of a short, stout old man emerged from the cabin and stood confronting her in smiling silence.

After salutations had been exchanged the traveler laughingly told the old man that she had half fancied his dwelling the home of fairies.

"No, indade, ma'am, but it's a good warm place, God bless it," replied the old man.

"But surely you cannot stand up in it?" said the traveler curiously.

"An fwhat nade to sthand, ma'am?" returned the owner of the tiny house. "Shure, an Oi can come outside to do that same, an whin Oi'm insoide it's mesilf that can either go to bed or sit down ma'am!"

There was such warmth in the smile with which this cheerful philosophy was propounded that the traveler was not disposed to pick flaws in it and smiled acceptance of its truth.—Youth's Companion.

THE NEW YORK TIMES.

The TIMES is a newspaper for intelligent men and women who want to read all the news of the world every day. The paper has distinguishing merits of its own. It is neither sensational nor dull. It is not sour-tempered. It is not frivolous or visionary. It sees plenty of good in the world and tells about it. It tells of the bad when it must, but not unwholesomely. It prints with fullness the record of human endeavor in many fields outside of business, politics and war—in literature, religion, science, art, sports and household matters. No paper in the country prints so many book reviews and so much book news. No paper has so complete a financial page—a daily manual for investors and officers of financial institutions. Its market reports—wool, cotton, breadstuffs, farm products, &c.—are the best in the country.

The Democracy of THE TIMES is of the old-fashioned sort—as old as Thomas Jefferson; majority rule, no bossism, no machine tyranny, the divorce of politics from private money-making, a sound currency, industrial emancipation, and every-day honesty. To promote the advance of the Democratic party along these lines it labors with heart and conscience and all its might.

THE NEW-YORK WEEKLY TIMES.

The subscription price of THE NEW-YORK WEEKLY TIMES is one dollar a year. THE WEEKLY TIMES is a capital newspaper. It contains all the current news condensed from the dispatches and reports of the daily edition, besides literary matter, discussions upon agricultural topics by practical farmers, full and accurate market reports of prices for farm produce, live stock, &c., and a carefully prepared weekly wool market.

ESTABLISHED 1836.

PUBLIC LEDGER,

PHILADELPHIA.

GEORGE W. CHILDS, Editor and Proprietor from 1864 to 1894.

GEORGE W. CHILDS DREXEL EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

Special Offer to Ledger Readers.

The PUBLIC LEDGER has had prepared a large Post Office, County, Township, and Railway Map of Pennsylvania complete to date. This map is given free to subscribers for two months to the Daily Edition or one year to the Saturday (weekly) Edition of the LEDGER.

The map, which has on its reverse side a complete map of the United States, has been adopted by numerous school districts in the State, and is the best and latest map issued. It is worth much more than the price of subscription but is given away freely to subscribers to introduce the paper to their notice in the firm belief that those who become acquainted with the merits of the New LEDGER will not be willing to give it up.

During 1896 the PUBLIC LEDGER'S former high place in journalism will be not only maintained, but advanced by improvements in every department, in the extension of its news service, literary attractions, and special features. To enable the publisher to make the proposed improvements, and to meet the steadily and rapidly growing circulation of the LEDGER, Messrs. Hoe & Co. have constructed for it and are now erecting four new Sextuple Presses of the latest and most approved design. These presses will increase the facilities for rapid printing 25 per cent., enhance the typographical appearance of the paper, and give more distinct impressions.

The LEDGER is first of all a newspaper giving all the news of the day, classified and in complete form. In the PUBLIC LEDGER every statement is verified, its news is therefore thoroughly reliable.

Outside of its news department (which includes special correspondence from all the important cities and towns in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Delaware) the LEDGER is an illustrated family newspaper of exceptional interest and value, giving special attention to domestic affairs, religious news and comment, social events, games, sports, the fashions of the day, literary, art, farm and garden, scientific and labor notes, building society notes, etc.

To its Special New York and Washington correspondence, long since rendered famous, it now adds letters from the chief Capitols of Europe.

Its financial news and market reports are complete and reliable.

The Saturday issue is a great compendium of every phase of social life, containing reading matter to suit every taste, compiled specially for the Saturday Edition of the LEDGER. Its treatise on the International Sunday School lesson is alone worth the price of subscription.

Its classified advertisements are as interesting as news and as widely read. The public has for years made the PUBLIC LEDGER its chief vehicle for the announcements of births, marriages, and deaths.

Agents wanted; liberal commissions paid. Address Circulation Department the LEDGER for terms.

WRITE FOR RATES FOR CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS. SUBSCRIPTION PRICES AS FOLLOWS:

The DAILY LEDGER (Sunday excepted), by mail, to any address in the United States or Canada, 50 cents per month; $6.00 per year.

Saturdays LEDGER (weekly), a great home journal, which should be in every country home, $1.00 per year.
